

Old World Christmas Historical Village at Allaire

One Day Tour ~ Sunday, December 15, 2024

Today, the magic of the Christmas season comes alive at the Historic Village of Allaire so let's step into this enchanting showcase of holiday cheer. This former self-sufficient community known as the Howell Iron Works Co. will be transformed into a festive atmosphere with enchanting sights, sounds, and activities for all. Enjoy the warm glow of open hearths as you wander through the village from the chapel to Allaire House amidst the joyful sound of live caroling. Participate in an array of Victorian holiday celebrations from ornament making to traditional party games. Stop by the General Store to find a special gift, craft, or seasonal goodie, and warm up with piping hot drinks and sweet treats prepared in the Village Bakery. Be delighted by the music program in the chapel and from roaming carolers and storytelling among holiday greens in the Enameling Building. All historic buildings will be decked in bows and ribbons and trimmed in festive greenery both inside and out, and historic sleds and wagons adorn the background prepared for their journey over the river and through the woods. After our wanderings, we'll make our way for an included late afternoon lunch before we are home nestled in bed with sugarplum dreams dancing in our heads. © 2024 The Educated Wanderer
